

The Cantonese Tone Identification Test

About the test

Cantonese Tone Identification Test is a validated and standardized assessment tool for measuring tone perception ability of the Cantonese-speaking population. Normed scores from aged three to adults are provided. Reference scores on hearing impaired children with various degrees of hearing loss are also included. Cantonese Tone Identification Test could be applied to the whole range of population from children to adult for research, clinical and teaching purposes. Please refer to the attached leaflet for Features and Clinical Applications of the Cantonese Tone Identification Test.
